CHICO, CALIFORNIA

IF YOU ARE A GROWER OF CAMELLIAS, OR IF YOU ANTICIPATE BECOMING ONE

there is much to interest you in this catalog. It has been very carefully prepared and the information it contains is based upon thirty-six years experience as Camellia specialists.

By the simple process of grouping the 179 varieties of Camellias listed we have so simplified our price list that it can be quickly and easily understood.

Let us emphasize again that, because of our keen interest in the growing of Camellias, we are always happy for an opportunity to answer questions or to discuss Camellia problems with those similarly interested.

LINDO NURSERY . ITS HISTORY

In 1907 Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Petersen started a small nursery selling chiefly fruit trees. The rich Sacramento Valley was new and many farmers were still blasting stumps from their recently cleared lands, making way for orchards and grain and their new homes. Very few ornamentals were sold from Lindo Nursery but as a hobby and with a love of flowers, Fred Petersen collected and grew Camellias, a shrub and flower he had learned to love in the big European nurseries where he served as an apprentice when a boy. His collection of these beautiful flowers grew and with it his reputation as a grower of fine varieties. His won the first prize at the first Camellia Show in Sacramento, and the Lindo Nursery has maintained the start he gave and boasts a fine array of Blue Ribbons from Camellia Shows in the years to follow. The collection of Camellias grew and the hobby started in 1910 has grown to a collection of more than 500 varieties. It has become the chief specialty of the Lindo Nursery, now under the management of George F. Petersen, the son, who like his father, has made Camellias his hobby as well as his business.

Visitors are welcome to come to Chico and see the West's most famous collection and in late February and early March the array of blossoms under lath is a beautiful sight.

COLLECTORS SEND US YOUR PROBLEMS

For years this nursery has catered to those who are making a hobby of collecting fine Camellias. We continue to increase our collection of rare varieties so that we may offer an ever greater number to the collectors. By long experience we have weeded out the undesirable varieties and offer the finer ones. You may be assured of an honest opinion on the relative merits of varieties we offer.

As Camellias have frequently been misnamed and several synonymous names may be given to a variety, collectors complain of duplications. Every effort is made to avoid sending duplicates. Great care is exercised to appraise our customers of duplications in their orders.

We further urge you to send us your Camellia problems. We will gladly help where possible, regardless of whether these problems are cultural or such as choosing a suitable color range. It is also possible for us to help you to choose varieties that will give a blooming season of six or seven months. Few flowers will provide bloom for so long a period.

We are always glad to help you with your Camellia problems and invite your correspondence.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The following is offered to answer in advance some of the questions most frequently asked about Camellias.

Bud Dropping: This is frequently due to great fluctuations in temperature; sometimes to drouth conditions. Camellias like constant moisture comparable to that required by your lawn. Keep your Camellias healthy and there will be little bud dropping.

Mottled Leaves: This is usually due to improper soil conditions—probably alkaline. Regular applications of Camellia-Azalea fertilizer should properly acidify your soil and prevent mottled leaves.

Fertilizer: Camellias require an acid soil which can readily be obtained by use of Camellia-Azalea fertilizers obtainable at nurseries or feed stores. The amount used will depend upon your own soil, alkaline soil needing more than neutral or acid soil. Apply according to directions and repeat until your plants have dark green glossy leaves. Apply fertilizer from February until the last of July. Use sparingly and frequently and watch the results. Three times the normal growth can be obtained with proper fertilizing.

Exposure: An eastern exposure sheltered from the hot afternoon sun is most ideal. However, Camellias will grow in full sunlight even in hot climates. Care should be taken, however, to prevent sunburn during the first season where fully exposed. Ample water and possibly a shade will accomplish this purpose.

Drainage: Camellias like constant moisture but must have good drainage. If your soil is heavy or poorly drained, dig a hole two or three feet deep and fill the bottom with gravel, then place earth over this and plant in the regular way.

Picking Flowers: Yes! You should pick the flowers. Use them in your house. Wear them. Enjoy Camellias to the utmost, but use discretion in the picking. Don't take more than three or four inches of stem and remember that replacement of Camellia wood is not so rapid as that of roses.

DON'TS

1. Don't remove the burlap from the ball.
2. Don't jolt the plant so that the ball will be broken.
3. Don't place the plant deeper than it stood when planted in the nursery.
4. Don't plant in an alkaline soil without proper preparation.
5. Don't fail to water regularly.
6. Don't fail to cut the blossoms and enjoy your Camellias.
(See paragraph on cutting.)

OUR COMPLETE COLLECTION

If there are other varieties in which you are interested, send for our complete list of 500 varieties. Many we have in only very limited quantities and in these varieties we will be glad to make up grafts during the months of December, January, and February, and delivery made the following spring when the plants are established.

Grafts are made on sturdy two-year-old stock. For grafts on older stock up to six years, write for further information.

DESCRIPTIONS

Single—denotes one or two rows of petals lying flat.

Semi-double—more than two rows of petals lying flat, with center of bloom open.

Imbricated—petals overlapping, similar to a Ranunculus flower.

Peony type—full double with irregular petals.

NOTE: An Asterisk (*) before a name indicates a very limited quantity. All such varieties are subject to supply.

TERMS

Cash with order, except for customers having established charge accounts.

SUBSTITUTION

We do not substitute varieties, but in some cases will make minor size substitutions.

OUR WARRANTY TO YOU

Lindo Nursery stock is strong and vigorous. Our plants carry a reserve strength that makes them grow easily and quickly in your garden. This, coupled with the fact that our soil fuses readily with other soils, makes it easy to establish our plants. They start to grow in your garden immediately and will continue in a vigorous condition. Our varieties are guaranteed true to name and description under which they are sold. There is a great confusion in nomenclature and many varieties are sold under various synonyms. We are constantly on the alert for these synonyms and sell our plants under the names most generally accepted.

PLANTING SEASON

Our digging season starts October 1 and orders are filled in the rotation they are received. Our season closes April 15. From April 15 to October 1 digging is done only upon special request and at the purchaser's risk.

Lindo Nurseries, Chico, Calif.

Few other flowers have such a long blooming season. The owner enjoyed Camellia blossoms in his own private residence garden from September 2 until after May 15 of last season. This continuous array of bloom started with Daikagura and Daikagura Variegata and ended with Elena Nobile and Mathotiana Alba. Blossoms of all shapes and colors resulted during the time between these dates. Flowers continuously adorned the Petersen residence.

Nothing is more beautiful than the Camellia to wear. The lady wearing these blossoms to a party as early as September or October will receive much admiration.

Lindo Nursery can help you select varieties that will give bloom over the long period mentioned above and even so few as six plants will give continuous bloom and a wide range of shapes and colors in these flowers.
